Colonic and Duodenal Lavage

With a Suggested Improvement in the Plombières Treatment

BY

Capt. J. T. Ainslie Walker, R.A.M.C. (T.F.), F.I.C., F.C.S.

From THE MEDICAL PRESS, Nov. 7th, 1923 :—

“ ‘Colonic and Duodenal Lavage: with a Suggested Improvement in the Plombières Treatment,’ is the title of a small brochure by Captain J. T. Ainslie Walker (London: H. K. Lewis & Co., Ltd., 1923, price 1s. net). As is generally known the Plombières treatment in cases of colitis and other forms of intestinal disorders is now largely resorted to. Its increasing vogue has been chiefly due to its results, favourable up to a certain point, but incomplete in a particular detail, which militates against a successful curative effect. The principle upon which the lavage method rests is to remove the bowel contents by means of irrigation at regular intervals. Thus the whole process is a mechanical one, and in so far as this is the case, it leaves out of account the toxin-producing bacteria of the intestines, which still remain after the irrigation. Captain Ainslie Walker makes a valuable suggestion in his brochure by which this difficulty can be readily overcome. In the course of his researches the fact has been established that an ordinary Plombières solution, after expulsion from the bowel, shows confluent growth, but under the same circumstances a Plombières solution, in which dimol powder has been previously dissolved, shows no growth. The experiments are described by which these results were obtained. By the simple method, therefore, of adding this intestinal bactericide—dimol—to the Plombières solutions, the circle of effective treatment is made complete. In the author's remarks upon duodenal lavage, a technique is described which has met with much approval by those who have practised it. Both in this case, and in colonic lavage, the amount of dimol powder recommended is given as a guide in its employment.”

THE MEDICAL WHO'S WHO

SEVENTH EDITION
————— 1925 —————

PUBLISHED ANNUALLY

30/- Nett.

The Particulars Form used for this Edition carried the following note :

THE GENERAL MEDICAL COUNCIL, to whom this Form has been referred, have authorized the following statement:—"The List of Questions to Practitioners on the answers to which the book is based, was submitted to the Officials of the General Medical Council, and no objection was taken by them."

Essentially dissimilar from other unofficial publications, this work includes no name which for any reason does not appear in the Medical REGISTER as corrected up to the date of its publication by The General Medical Council. The Publishers wish it to be clearly understood that, while not subject to, they fully recognise, the authority and jurisdiction of The General Medical Council, and accept their rulings, regulations, and decisions regarding inclusion or exclusion of any name without question.

GRAFTON PUBLISHING COMPANY LIMITED,
8, STONE BUILDINGS, LINCOLN'S INN, LONDON, W.C.2.

Some Extracts from the many Appreciations which have appeared in the Medical and Lay Press.

PRELIMINARY NOTICES OF 7TH EDITION. THE MEDICAL WHO'S WHO.

THIS publication was suspended in 1918 on the death of its late editor. Begun in 1912 as a very modest volume of 300 pages, it grew through successive editions, all of which are out of print, to a substantial volume, and the Grafton Publishing Co., Ltd., have now acquired the copyright, and will reissue on a revised plan. All registered practitioners will shortly receive a form to be filled up, which has been submitted to the General Medical Council. The new book aims at blending the good features of the Medical Directory with those of Who's Who, and if this is successfully accomplished the book should prove of value to the practitioner, and be of general use. The Lancet.

The Grafton Publishing Co., Ltd., have, recently, issued to every practitioner whose name appears on The Medical Register as corrected for them to date by the General Medical Council, a Particulars Form for personal data in the forthcoming New and Revised Edition of this work, which had fallen into abeyance for a few years. A careful study of this Form indicates that the present Editor has lifted this work to an entirely new and eminently satisfactory plane. Every detail appears to have been thought out most carefully with scrupulous regard for etiquette, and every possible need of the consultant, specialist, general practitioner, and of those engaged in special or research work seems to have been anticipated and well provided for. The New Edition should prove a distinct and practical addition to Medical needs. The work will embody all the features of The Medical Register, the ordinary directories, and of the well known Who's Who, will include no name not on the Register, and will provide a short, quick, direct and accurate key to the work and interests of each practitioner, not only indispensable to themselves, but of intrinsic interest to the intelligent general public. We wish this work every success and venture to hope it will be well and promptly supported. The Medical Press and Circular.

The publication of this well-known guide to the medical profession was suspended in 1918 owing to the death of its late editor. In 1912 it began as a modest volume of 300 pages and in six years' time it had increased to four times its original size. A form which was submitted to the General Medical Council, has been sent to all registered practitioners. We trust that all our readers who have received the form will complete and return it without delay to The Grafton Publishing Co., Ltd., who have now acquired the copyright and are preparing a new and up-to-date reference book. Journal of State Medicine.

The work promises to be of exceptional interest and value. British Journal of Inebriety.

Great care has been taken to comply with all the ethical traditions which must be safeguarded in connection with a work of this kind, and the publishers have had valuable assistance from the General Medical Council in the early stages of compilation. Besides the usual professional details, the book will give much other information, such as is supplied by the entries in the original Who's Who. Medical Officer.

Will be found an invaluable source of reference for use in hospitals, hydros, sanatoria, medical, surgical and chemical supply houses, etc. Indian and Eastern Druggist.

It has the endorsement of the highest official medical authority. Hospital and Health Review.

In the work of compiling the volume the General Medical Council have rendered great assistance, as have also a number of Government departments. Daily Telegraph.

We would urge all King's men and other readers to send in particulars at once. King's College Hospital Gazette.

All practitioners having outstanding forms for insertion should immediately return them, as the 7th Edition is shortly going to press. St. Thomas's Hospital Gazette.

If this notice falls under the eye of any physician entitled to have his name among those published in the MEDICAL WHO'S WHO, it is to be hoped that if he has not returned the blank form sent him he will do so at once.

Perhaps the time may come in this country when an official register will be kept of those legitimately entitled to practice medicine or surgery.

The recent revelations in Connecticut and elsewhere of wholesale frauds in selling diplomas and securing state registration indicate its need.

American Journal of Psychiatry.

It is a very useful publication.

South African Medical Record.

Doctor—get a copy—it's well worth the price.

Canada Lancet.

The ethical standard is placed upon an unequivocal basis. Attention is drawn to this ethical distinction inasmuch as the ordinary medical directories will be found, to the detriment of the public interests, to include the names of medical men who have been struck off the Registers.

Bulletin of the Fellowship of Medicine.

This extremely useful publication is particularly useful to the many official bodies, institutions and business houses who are directly related to or deal with the medical profession, as well as to practitioners themselves.

Journal of Clinical Research.

We took occasion to speak in highly complimentary terms of the last edition, and we understand that the new edition will be arranged on a revised and much improved plan. The approval and co-operation of the General Medical Council have been accorded to the publishers, who are thus enabled to issue a book at once authoritative and ethical. The Council's official statement appears on the particulars form.

The Prescriber.

REVIEWS OF FORMER EDITIONS.

It contains the names of all qualified practitioners who make the necessary returns, is primarily a personal record, though professional details necessarily come a good deal to the fore. It differs from the Medical Directories in giving information as to date and place of birth, parentage, early education and other matters.

The Lancet (1913).

No doubt of considerable interest.

British Medical Journal.

There seems no adequate reason why this publication should not appeal to members of the profession, every medical practitioner can be included in its pages provided the necessary information is supplied on the forms issued for the purpose. It is evident that confidence is growing, the advancement in favour has been rapid.

Proc. Royal Society of Medicine.

We have nothing but praise for it as an Editorial achievement.

The Medical Officer.

With each succeeding issue increases in usefulness.

Morning Post.

Continues to grow in size and the alphabetical order in which the names appear has made it, apart from professional purposes, the readiest reckoner.

The Hospital and Health Record.

The Grafton Publishing Co., Ltd., having acquired the copyright of the MEDICAL WHO'S WHO, has in preparation another Edition—the seventh—bringing the work up to date. . . . It contains thousands of biographies, but as the list, long as it is, is not exhaustive it may be thought that the publication contains only a selection of prominent and representative physicians and surgeons. The book is not intended to be limited in that sense, its object is to include the names of all members of the Medical Profession who make returns of particulars. The Times.

The compilers are to be congratulated upon the successful foundation of a badly needed and most useful book of reference. Fall Mall Gazette.

Preface.

THE MEDICAL WHO'S WHO was first published in 1912 as a modest volume of some 300 pages, and grew, despite the handicap of the War, to a book four times its original size at its last appearance in 1918, when, owing to the death of its then Editor, it fell into abeyance.

It was brought to the attention of its present Editor by the authorities, who suggested its revival on strictly ethical lines; the copyright was therefore acquired and this suggestion put into effect. A form for personal particulars was drawn up to meet all suggestions of the competent authorities and the work is based entirely on that form.

The Editor and Publishers are under heavy obligations, and desire to express their thanks to the General Medical Council, the Royal Colleges of Physicians and Surgeons of England, Scotland and Ireland, the Society of Apothecaries, the Royal Society of Medicine, the British Medical Association, to many other Medical Societies, and to Members of the Profession (both Consultants and General Practitioners) too numerous to mention, for invaluable assistance, without which this work, in its present form, would have been impossible. They also desire to express their thanks to the War Office, the Admiralty, the Colonial Office, the India Office and the Air Ministry for most valuable aid in connection with Medical Officers attached thereto. The unfailing courtesy, encouragement and goodwill graciously extended to them from every side at every step are too deeply appreciated for adequate expression.

The labour and care involved in reviving this work (which has been entirely reset and altered in format) have been enormous and the production of it has taken far more time than was anticipated. The Publishers regret the unavoidable delay in preparing this new Edition, which in future will be issued regularly at the beginning of each year. The Editor trusts it is unnecessary to say that inclusion in this work is open to every Registered Medical Practitioner and that proper particulars are printed free of any condition, save only that of legal qualification. "Legally qualified" is defined by Statute to mean "Registered." Unless "Registered" no one, however "qualified," can legally practise in the British Empire. Many applications for inclusion have been received from unregistered persons; in no case, of course, have these been entertained. In several instances biographies actually in type have been omitted on account of notification of erasure by the Council to the Editor.

The Editor has been inundated with requests for a classified list of Consultants and Specialists, both from Members of the Profession at home and abroad, as well as from the laity, but despite the fact that something of this kind has been attempted by others with apparently no official condemnation, the Editor feels the time has not yet come when this would be generally approved by the whole profession, and he has preferred to defer to the views of such a representative body as the British Medical Association, to the Medical Secretaries of which he is greatly indebted.

It will be seen that Consultants and Specialists generally have taken advantage of the ethical opportunity here afforded to state precisely the nature of their work, and the General Practitioner has been glad to indicate the professional study in which he is particularly interested. This will be undoubtedly of practical use and value to Members of the Profession and to the intelligent laity. Such data are peculiar to this work, which also gives in every case the date of Registration by the General Medical Council.

The Editor will welcome any intimation of errors, change of or new appointments, alteration of address or telephone number, additional qualifications, etc., and any suggestions for improving subsequent editions. While the utmost care has been taken to ensure absolute accuracy, minor errors are inevitable in a work of this magnitude—Errare humanum, parcere divinum. The Editor asks the indulgence of the profession and its co-operation in eliminating these. It will convey some idea of the labour involved in the production of this book if it be mentioned that each entry has had to be checked and compared with the Register or official records.

The List of Abbreviations used has been made particularly complete for the benefit of the laity.

The Index or Geographical List, another feature peculiar to this work, will, it is hoped, be found especially useful. London addresses are there given in full. The able article on British Spas from a purely professional point of view, contributed by Dr. Wilfrid Edgecombe, will be welcomed by the Profession, and will, it is hoped, do much to emphasise the fact that it is not necessary to send patients abroad for such treatment. The List of Leading Medical Publications (English and Foreign) and of the Chief Hospitals of London will be found of value, while the list of those Members of the Profession who have passed the Great Divide is exhaustive for a period of about $2\frac{1}{2}$ years past. A star prefixed to a name in this list indicates that a biography will be found printed.

Any Registered Practitioner who may not receive a particulars form for the next issue is requested to communicate with the Editor.

The General Medical Council request the Publishers to call the attention of all Practitioners to the importance of immediately notifying any change of address, in writing, to The Registrar, 44, Hallam Street, London, W.1. The Editor hopes that this may also be communicated to him.

The Public and the Medical Directories.

THE public generally may be assumed to have no knowledge of the Medical and Dental Registers issued by the General Medical Council. These important publications are probably only consulted when the necessity arises to do so for a legal purpose. Hence the layman, desirous of knowing the position of a particular medical man, is naturally induced to turn to a medical directory for the information he seeks. It has, however, to be remembered that in no sense is such a publication of the kind official; nor does it convey any guarantee of accuracy, so much so that the fact has been pointed out that the names of medical practitioners who have been struck off the Register generally remain undeleted. That is equivalent to misleading the public as to the status of a practitioner, one, that is, who has been debarred from fulfilling the duties of his profession. The point is naturally one of no little importance, and has hitherto, we believe, remained unnoticed. For while the penalty incurred by the erasure of a name from the Register is well known to the profession, the public are probably quite unaware that among other disabilities it deprives a practitioner of the right of signing a death certificate. In brief, for the time being a practitioner is relegated to the position of an unqualified medical man. In this regard the Grafton Publishing Co., Ltd., have struck out a new line from which the public will benefit. With the full concurrence and support of the General Medical Council they have in hand two publications, The Medical Who's Who and London Doctors and Dental Surgeons, which contain only the names of those medical practitioners and dental surgeons appearing in the two Registers. Thus accuracy is guaranteed, and the publications may be regarded as quasi official, and from the ethical aspect approved of. Probably the main difficulty of the publishers is the slowness—the lack of promptness—with which a large number of practitioners respond to inquiries for the particulars they desire to authorise for publication. This is apt to cause delay in the issue of the volumes, inasmuch as the publishers very properly decline to reproduce information derived from unofficial sources.

Why DOCTOR'S CHINA TEA?

For many years doctors have recommended our China Tea to Invalids and Dyspeptics when ordinary tea was out of the question. The Medical Press, too, has commented frequently upon the merits of this particular blend—and so we call it DOCTOR'S China Tea.

It is a perfect blend of the finest China leaf with all excess tannin eliminated. Invalids and dyspeptics can drink it with no ill effects.

WILL YOU ACCEPT 1/4 LB. GRATIS?

In order that Doctors all over the country may test the tea their colleagues have so generously recommended, we will send $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. entirely free to any medical man who will write for it. This offer applies solely to members of the Medical Profession.

Ammonol

The Stimulant Antipyretic

and Analgesic Ethical . . .

Endorsed in Clinical Reports of cases at Bellevue Hospital, New York City. Dr. W. H. Porter, Professor at the Post-Graduate Medical School, New York, in a clinical lecture delivered at that Institution, March 17th, 1897, recommends Ammonol as an intestinal antiseptic. Dr. R. C. M. Page, Professor of General Medicine, &c., at the Polyclinic, Member of the Academy of Medicine, &c., in a paper on "Pleurisy, Its Diagnosis and Treatment," read before the New York County Medical Society, recommends Ammonol as a highly efficient and stimulating antipyretic. Dr. W. R. Inge Dalton, Member American Medical Association, in a paper entitled "Relief of Paroxysm in Dysmenorrhœa," read before the New York County Medical Association, Stated Meeting, April 18th, 1898, states that he had administered the remedy in many cases of the congested form of dysmenorrhœa with eminently satisfactory results; also in a paper read at the Meeting of the American Medical Association at Denver, June, 1898, entitled "Therapeutics of Coal-tar Products," Dr. Dalton stated that Ammonol had given him entire satisfaction in typhoid fever, reducing the temperature without exerting any depressing cardiac action, thus demonstrating its superiority to all other coal-tar products. Also endorsed by Dr. J. T. Foster, in a paper on "La Grippe," read before the Southern Illinois Medical Association last May.

These are a few of the many eminent American practitioners who heartily endorse Ammonol and its combinations. All the leading hospitals and institutions in America are using Ammonol, beginning with Bellevue, Roosevelt, Post-Graduate, Polyclinic, &c., in New York City, and so through the entire list. It is the remedy, par excellence, for emergency cases, as well as for the practitioner's regular private practice. THE AMMONOL CHEMICAL CO., NEW YORK, U.S.A.

Nutrolactis

FOR NURSING MOTHERS

THE GALACTAGOGUE

THE NUTROLACTIS Co., New York, U.S.A.

TIS had been found to decidedly increase mother's milk in two institutions with which he was connected.

DR. ROBERT MILLBANK, Fellow of the Academy of Medicine, New York, Member New York County Medical Society, Member of Society of Alumni Bellevue Hospital, late Visiting Physician New York Infant Asylum, said in The New York Medical Journal, Nov. 16, 1896: "I gave a few years ago the results of about one hundred cases in my hospital practice in which I prescribed NUTROLACTIS. I believe that when mother's milk is scanty and of poor quality, it restores the normal flow and quality, and causes a corresponding improvement in the digestion and nutrition of the infant. I have never seen any bad effects from its continued use to either mother or child."

Similar Testimonials have been received from many thousand Physicians.

INCOME TAX — £ £ £ SAVED

In adjusting the liability of many Medical Practitioners with Inspectors of Taxes we have saved substantial sums for our clients—£422, £292, £269, £178, £121, are a few actual amounts—our experience proves that Doctors are frequently over-assessed.

IF YOU ARE IN ANY DOUBT, WHY NOT CONSULT US?

Every Medical Practitioner should see our Income Tax Guide, which contains valuable information and advice. A copy will be sent to any applicant who encloses 3d. in stamps to cover expenses. RETURNS PREPARED. CLAIMS MADE. ADVICE.

MANY DOCTORS PAY TOO MUCH INCOME TAX

We invariably save money.

Spa Treatment in Great Britain.

By WILFRID EDGECOMBE, M.D., M.R.C.P.Lond., F.R.C.S.Eng.

The use of natural mineral waters and baths in the treatment of disease is of great antiquity, dating back to Greco-Roman times or even earlier. Founded originally on pure empiricism in the ages of superstition, it has gradually emerged on to a higher plane by reason of the scientific work that has been done on the subject, mainly during the last century: and it may now be said to rest on a sound scientific basis. In spite of this, there still lingers in the mind of the medical profession at large an atmosphere of mild suspicion as to the real utility of Spa Treatment, though the laity are well persuaded of its value. Perhaps the main reason for this distrust lies in the advertising of Spas by the lay managements, for in Great Britain all the Spas are under municipal or private control. The claims made by them are apt to be extravagant. Lay advertisement on commercial lines of the general amenities of a Spa is permissible. The advertising of the purely medical aspects needs revision and should be rigidly controlled by the medical profession. No statements should be put forward that cannot be abundantly justified on clinical or experimental grounds.

Spa Treatment connotes the interplay of many factors. It embraces the use, singly or combined, of many agents, physical and psychical. The physical comprise natural mineral waters used internally by drinking, and externally by bathing: special baths and douches of various kinds: accessory methods, such as massage, exercise, mechano-therapeutics, electrical procedures: climate and diet. The psychical include change of scene and environment: absence from business worries: recreation, etc. It is not merely the drinking of this or that water or the taking of any special bath, but the summation of the whole that constitutes Spa Treatment.

The main aim of Spa Treatment is the regulation of faulty metabolism, rendered abnormal by excessive or deficient intake, by defective or excessive output, by lack of exercise and fresh air, or by the action of poisons, chemical or bacterial. The broad principles underlying such treatment are as follows:—

1. The securing of increased elimination of waste products through the bowel by means of waters having an aperient action: through the kidneys by waters having a diuretic effect: and through the skin by baths having a diaphoretic action.
2. The acceleration of interchange between blood and tissue fluids brought about by changes in the circulation and the flow of tissue lymph excited by mineral water baths, massage douches, and other bathing procedures.
3. The resultant dislodgment of waste products from the tissues and the more rapid supply of fresh nutriment from the blood leads to improvement in general metabolism, to increased bactericidal power of the blood, increased resistance to disease, and increased power of recovery.
4. The regulation of the intake of food by suitable dieting according to the needs of the particular cases.
5. The regulation of the amount of exercise or rest.
6. The securing of conditions having a psychological effect, the importance of which is not to be under-estimated: such as change of scene and surroundings, absence of work and worry, and the provision of suitable occupation and recreation.
7. The removal, where possible, of the cause of the disease—for example, the removal of any discoverable source of local or general infection.

The specific action of any given mineral water is of less importance than the combined result of the many factors above outlined. Though certain waters have been shown to have a definite pharmacological action on certain organs and tissues of the body, there is no adequate proof that any of the mineral waters have a specific action in any given disease. The treatment of chronic diseases by Spa methods is more surely founded on general principles than on any supposed—and as yet unproved—specific action.

The types of disease suitable for Spa Treatment are the chronic nutritional disorders and chronic infective diseases, preferably in the early stage. Acute disease, and advanced organic disease, of whatever kind, are unsuitable and should not be sent to Spas. Broadly speaking they may be grouped as follows:—

1. "Chronic rheumatic" diseases so-called: Non-articular, including lumbago, sciatica, fibrositis, neuritis: articular, including arthritis of all kinds—rheumatoid, infective, toxic, neuropathic.

Most of the conditions scheduled above are amenable to treatment by Spa methods on the principles laid down. With certain limitations these principles may be carried out equally well at most Spas having the necessary equipment. Naturally, Spas will differ in their mode of application of the principles, one having waters more suitable for eliminant action by the kidneys and another whose waters act mainly on the bowel : another where the waters have a proved action on the liver : and so on. The factors, too, of climate, geographical situation, social amenities, and time of year, must all be considered in the choice of a Spa. The principles, however, remain the same and are acted upon so far as the resources of a given Spa permit.

It is necessary to stress the point that cases of functional disorder and incipient organic disease should be sent for treatment early, when prevention or arrest of the disease is possible. All too often they are sent too late, when the condition is so far advanced as not to be amenable to Spa Treatment.

It is true that these broad principles are equally capable of application at home, by the use of drugs, and by physical modes of treatment. Home treatment, however, lacks certain manifest advantages possessed by treatment at a well-equipped Spa. The necessary physical methods are rarely available at home. At a Spa the concentration on the spot of a wide choice of physical procedures, by waters, baths, and accessory treatments, the change of scene and climate, the removal from business worries and anxieties, the opportunities provided for rest, recreation, and exercise according to need, the opportunity to take the ailment seriously and to concentrate on its treatment undisturbed by other influences, and lastly the combination of a holiday with concurrent treatment in minor disorders—all these are considerations weighing in favour of Spa, as against home, treatment.

The disadvantages of Spa Treatment are the expense, the length of time involved, and the necessity oftentimes for a repetition of the cure. Though more applicable to the well-to-do, Spa treatment is by no means out of the reach of the less fortunate. At the chief Spas there are Hospitals for the treatment of the needy, and those immediately situated have little difficulty in finding accommodation and treatment within the scope of their limited means.

The chief types of natural mineral waters occurring in Great Britain are as follows :

1. Simple Thermal waters, issuing hot, of low mineral content, and radioactive in varying degree. They contain a relative excess of calcium salts and little sodium chloride. They are exemplified by the waters of BATH and BUXTON and MATLOCK BATH. Their action is mainly diuretic : and changes are excited in nitrogenous metabolism as evidenced by alterations in the urinary output. It is claimed that the radioactivity of the water is largely responsible for its effect, but this is as yet unproved.

2. Saline waters, issuing cold, highly mineralised and having no radioactivity.

(a) Muriated—containing sodium chloride in large amount. For example the waters of DROITWICH which contain 31 per cent, or ten times as much as sea water : and those of NANTWICH and NORTHWICH. They are only used externally for bathing purposes and are heated by steam. A milder saline water used internally is found at LLANGAMMARCH.

(b) Muriated-Sulphated, containing in addition to sodium chloride the sulphates of sodium and magnesium. Such are the waters of CHELTENHAM, LEAMINGTON, and BRIDGE OF ALLAN. They have an aperient action on the bowel and are also diuretic.

(c) Muriated alkaline, containing sodium bicarbonate in relative excess in addition to sodium chloride. The only example of this water in Great Britain is the Pittville Spring at CHELTENHAM.

Spa Treatment in Great Britain.

3. Sulphur Waters, issuing cold, highly mineralised—radioactive in a low degree.
 - (a) Saline sulphur, containing sodium chloride in excess with many other salines, and sulphur in the form of sulphides and sulphuretted hydrogen gas. Examples are found at HARROGATE, which has a great range of saline sulphur waters, strong and mild: at STRATHPEFFER in whose waters the H_2S is relatively in large amount: at LLANDRINDOD where the waters belong to the mild saline-sulphur class, containing H_2S and $NaCl$ in relative excess: and at LLANWYRTD and MOFFAT. The action of the stronger members of the group is aperient on the bowel and stimulating to the liver: while the milder members act mainly on the kidneys. Both provoke changes in metabolism.
 - (b) Alkaline sulphur, containing carbonates in addition to chlorides and sulphides. Examples of these occur at HARROGATE, where they are chiefly used for bathing purposes in skin cases.
 4. Chalybeate waters, issuing cold and containing iron in addition to various amounts of salines.
 - (a) Saline-Iron, containing sodium chloride and other salines with iron, as carbonate, chloride or protosulphate.
 - (b) Pure chalybeate, containing iron as their chief constituent with minimal quantities of other substances. Examples are found at many Spas—BUXTON, HARROGATE, LLANDRINDOD, STRATHPEFFER, TREFIW, TUNBRIDGE WELLS, LLANWYRTD.
 5. Bromo-Iodine waters, issuing cold, containing small amounts of iodine and bromine, in addition to other salines such as the chloride of sodium, calcium and magnesium. The only example in Great Britain is the water of WOODHALL SPA.
- Baths play a prominent part in carrying out the principles of Spa Treatment. Each Spa has Immersion baths of its own mineral waters. These produce their effects mainly by acting on the circulation, either directly, or reflexly through stimulation of the cutaneous nerve endings by the saline constituents dissolved in the water. With some waters, e.g., the Sulphur group, there is a local antiseptic action on the skin. There is no proof that natural mineral water baths have any specific action. The saline constituents are not absorbed by the skin, though there may be an effect due to the inhalation of gases given off. The main effects are produced by temperature and hydrostatic pressure. These baths differ from plain water baths in that the effects produced are greatly enhanced at equivalent temperatures.

In addition to the mineral water baths there is a great variety of special baths, douches, and accessory procedures, most of which are available at a well-equipped Spa. Among them may be mentioned the massage douches, needle baths, and local douches, peat baths, hot air and radiant heat baths, Turkish and vapour baths, effervescing saline baths, the whirlpool baths, the paraffin wax bath, and local packs of peat or mustard, such as the liver packs.

The fundamental action of all these procedures lies in the changes they excite in the circulation, local or general, either directly or reflexly through the nervous system. Such changes lead to improved blood and lymph supply, to improved nutrition, and to quickening of general metabolism. Treatments directed to special parts have a similar, though local, effect—the part is flooded with excess of blood carrying antibodies enhanced in power by the raising of the bactericidal power of the blood.

Accessory treatments, such as intestinal lavage, practised at many Spas: massage in its various forms: mechano-therapeutics: electrical treatments of different kinds require mention. Any or all are of use for particular cases in carrying out the principles involved.

Of the factors of Diet, Climate, and Environment space forbids elaboration.

Such is a brief outline of Spa Treatment and the principles underlying it. The choice of a Spa for any given case must depend on a variety of considerations. To formulate clear and precise indications is a matter of great difficulty, and within the limits of a short article it is impossible to discuss these fully. Certain Spas have acquired a reputation for the treatment of certain diseases: Bath and Buxton for cases of arthritis and the asthenic type of gout: Droitwich for sciatica, lumbago, and fibrositis: Harrogate for liver disorders, skin diseases, and the asthenic type of gout: Woodhall Spa for scrofula and the diseases peculiar to women: and so forth. But, practically speaking, all the Spas claim to treat all varieties of disease scheduled above: and the reason is that their treatment is founded less on the specific action of their waters and baths than on the broad general principles enunciated.

14/40 h.p. SUNBEAM COUPÉ.

The Perfect Car for Professional Men

NO Car is more suitable for the professional man than a well designed Coupé—especially in this fickle English climate. When closed neither wind, rain nor cold can penetrate; with the head folded back it has all the advantages of an open car. The 14/40 h.p. Sunbeam Coupé model is so well designed and built that it fully equals the wonderful chassis to which it is fitted. In the chassis such points as the quiet running overhead valve engine, cantilever rear springing, and Sunbeam four-wheel brakes operated from one pedal, make this car a real pleasure to drive. Through the traffic of towns or over country roads the 14/40 h.p. Sunbeam gives nothing but satisfaction—and to a degree unequalled by any other medium-powered car of to-day.

PRICES :—

14/40 h.p. COUPÉ, £795

(Including Four-Wheel Brakes).

Other SUNBEAM Models from £570 to £1,275.
